

South Viets Renew Cease-Fire Plan

SAIGON (AP) — The South Vietnamese government today renewed its proposal for a cease-fire and the reunification elections with North Vietnam that President Ngo Dinh Diem refused to hold 16 years ago.

Although both the government and a U.S. Embassy spokesman said it was reaffirmation of proposals made in 1969 and July 8, by South Vietnam, the renewal of the bid took on new significance in light of other moves aimed at a peaceful settlement.

These include a new seven-point peace package put forth by the Viet Cong at the Paris peace talks July 1 and President Nixon's forthcoming visit to mainland China to confer with Red Chinese leaders.

At the daily briefing for news correspondents, U.S. Embassy spokesman Roy W. Johnson was asked if the United States saw anything new in the South Vietnamese proposal.

"So far, we haven't found anything new in it," Johnson replied. "It is a reaffirmation of a statement made in 1969. It is also a reaffirmation of two points of the five-point proposal made July 8 in Paris. We see nothing new in it."

There was no immediate comment from the State Department in Washington. However, sources familiar with the peace negotiations said they expect North Vietnamese and Viet Cong envoys to rebuff the Saigon proposal.

The latest South Vietnamese statement was made in a communique issued by the Foreign Ministry to mark the 17th anniversary of the 1954 Geneva agreements that ended the French war in Indochina, divided Vietnam at the 17th Parallel and provided for reunification elections. The South Vietnamese government refused to sign the agreements but observes the anniversary as National Grief Day.

The communique today called for "reunification of the two zones by means of general elections in both North and South Vietnam under international supervision."

"While waiting for reunification," the communique said, "the two sides can meet to explore the development of relationship between the two zones."

"Pending the reunification of the country, which would take some time to materialize, at least the two zones should be able to coexist peacefully to promote welfare and happiness for all the people."

The South Vietnamese government "solemnly requests the North Vietnamese authorities to end their negative attitude and start immediately serious negotiations without any preconditions so that an agreement on a total cease-fire can be reached," the communique said.

"In a more serene atmosphere, when the guns stop firing, the two sides will discuss the modalities of general elections under international supervision in both zones in order to realize the reunification of the country."

In Washington, there was no immediate comment from the State Department. However, sources familiar with the peace talks in Paris expect the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong to rebuff Saigon's bid.

President Nguyen Van Thieu made a similar proposal more than two years ago, on April 7, 1969, but that was a time of large-scale fighting and there were 543,400 U.S. troops in Vietnam. Today, the war is winding down and U.S. strength has been cut to 236,000 troops, with at least 42,000 more to go this year. The atmosphere may be more conducive to fruitful negotiations.

Vice President Nguyen Cao Ky told newsmen Sunday that he thinks it possible that Communist China already has put pressure on North Vietnam to change its policy. Citing the Nixon trip to Peking, he said: "If Red China has already accepted peaceful coexistence, surely the North Vietnamese will change their policy. There is no doubt."

But North Vietnam indicated Nixon would not be able to use Peking to achieve a settlement unacceptable to Hanoi. Without referring specifically to the President's trip or to Red China, an editorial in the North Vietnamese Communist Party newspaper Nhan Dan said "Nixon's policy also consists of trying to achieve a compromise between the big powers in an attempt to make smaller countries bow to their arrangements. But the time when the imperialists could dictate their will to the world has definitely gone. The time when a big power could bully a smaller country has also ended for good."

The lull in the war entered its fourth week, and military spokesmen reported battlefield action at the lowest level since the big U.S. troop buildup in 1965. But U.S. officers said they had no form evidence that there was any connection between the lull and the various peace moves. They suggested that the North Vietnamese were conserving their troops and war materials for attempts to disrupt the South Vietnamese congressional elections next month and the presidential election.

No Progress

Extend Labor Talks In Several Disputes

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Contract talks involving 650,000 union postal workers continued today past the Sunday midnight deadline set for summoning arbitrators, but no progress was reported in strikes against the Bell Telephone System, two railroads and West Coast shipping firms.

A tentative contract agreement with seven striking unions was reached Sunday by a major copper producer.

Charles Caldwell, a Labor Department spokesman, said bargainers for the new U.S. Postal Service and several AFL-CIO unions were making "some progress" in round-the-clock talks in Washington. Cautious optimism was the expression used by a union leader.

The Postal Service and Unions earlier set Sunday midnight as the deadline for calling in arbitrators, but the deadline was ignored as talks continued through the morning with only a one-hour break.

The tentative copper contract was reported by the Magma Copper Co., largest independent among a number of struck producers.

Announcement Sunday of the proposed three-year Magma contract was the first breakthrough in the 18-day nationwide copper strike that has shut down mines and smelters throughout the West and idled some 35,000 workers.

It calls for an average hourly wage increase of 92 cents, a 50 per cent increase in the pension program and an unlimited cost of living escalator clause. The latter had been a major issue in the bargaining.

Current average wages range from $3.91 to $4.38 an hour. The Magma contract would affect about 3,000 workers.

A spokesman for the AFL-CIO United Steelworkers of America, largest of the seven unions, said talks would be held this week with Anaconda and Kennecott, the largest producers.

Magma is considered an independent firm because it has mines only in Arizona. The four largest producers have mines and operations in several states.

In the telephone strike, there was a marked decrease in reports of sabotage and vandalism as the walkout by 400,000 members of the AFL-CIO Communications Workers of America entered its sixth day.

Negotiations continued on both the national and regional levels over wages, fringe benefits and local issues. The current average hourly wage is $3.43. Service continued to be virtually normal.

The strike against Western Union went into its 38th day with no reports of progress from the company or two unions—the CWA and the United Telegraph Workers—representing 20,000 workers.

In the rail strike, railroad officials accused the United Transportation union of injecting new, insurmountable demands in the talks aimed at ending the walkout against the Southern and Union Pacific lines.

Both struck railroads continued curtailed operations with supervisory personnel but rail-dependent business and industry in the areas served by the lines were expected to feel the pinch beginning today.

Although only the two lines are affected by the walkout of some 48,000 union members, the outcome of the bargaining affects all major carriers. At the heart of the dispute is the operators' demand for work rule changes.

The strike by 15,000 West Coast longshoremen continued to tie up shipping in 24 ports from the Canadian to the Mexican borders. The walkout began July 1.

Pakistani Refugees... aid or no aid?

Pakistani Aid Proposal New Worry

WASHINGTON (AP) — Government sources say President Nixon soon will have to face the question of military aid for Pakistan or find Congress has made the decision for him.

The administration has been studying the aid question for three months with no official word on a finding. In fact, sources say, Nixon's advisers are split among themselves on the politically and diplomatically touchy issue.

U.S. assistance—economic and military—officially is being "held in abeyance" with arms sales halted as of March 25, the date West Pakistani troops moved to crush the independence movement in the Eastern province.

Since then some ships have sailed for Pakistan carrying military equipment, mostly spare parts sold under licenses the State Department says were issued before March 25.

But even this relative trickle of equipment has brought on cries at home and abroad the administration is providing the means for West Pakistan to massacre the rebels.

This morality argument is among points advocated by those administration officials who favor the continuing hold on assistance, particularly arms aid.

They also point to diplomatic pitfalls if aid to Pakistan is resumed. A World Bank-led international consortium has recommended no more aid until the millions of East Pakistani refugees are allowed to return and "reasonable stability" is established.

And India is strongly opposed to American arms aid to the neighbor with which it has been at a near warlike state for years.

Presents China Briefing

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon briefed congressional leaders and the Cabinet in turn today on the background of his upcoming trip to Communist China, and the White House said that "we welcome any initiative that might offer a solution to the Vietnamese problem."

"And we are hoping the other side," said press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler, "would move in a positive way to any negotiation that would prove useful."

But the latter was more in reference to a new South Vietnamese proposal for a complete cease-fire and the possible calling of internationally supervised elections to reunite the South with North Vietnam.

In another development, an informed White House source said President Nixon gave Vice President Spiro T. Agnew no advance word of his plan to visit China.

Agnew, according to the informant, was excluded from all advance planning and knew nothing of Nixon's dramatic move until Thursday night when the President publicly announced his intentions.

This may account for Agnew's refusal to comment when first contacted by newsmen about the announcement. The vice president was in Africa at the time on one of the final legs of a month-long around-the-world trip which took him away from the councils of government during final negotiations on an agreement for Nixon to visit Peking.

Agnew is known to have displeased the White House earlier this year when he described the visit of an American table tennis team to Peking as a disaster for the United States and a propaganda victory for Red China.

Nixon set up separate meetings today with bipartisan leaders of Congress and Cabinet members to report on his diplomatic approaches to mainland China.

Returning Sunday night from a 12-day stay in California, the President was greeted by some 300 people at Andrews Air Force Base, Md., including representatives of the Cabinet and the Joint Chiefs of Staff.

The White House said the welcome was spontaneous.

With Nixon were Secretary of State William P. Rogers and Dr. Henry A. Kissinger, the presidential aide who secretly visited Peking July 9-11 to nail down a preliminary agreement with Premier Chou En-lai for Nixon's planned visit.

During the flight from California, Kissinger suggested to a small group of newsmen aboard Air Force One that the Nixon trip might well occur next spring.

While saying no date is fixed, he cautioned that necessary detailed negotiations in preparation for the journey could hardly be completed early in the fall. And he noted that, as he put it, the winter weather in China is brutal.

Kissinger, in his first attributable public remarks on his own travels to China, said he was accompanied by two Secret Service agents charged with making certain the classified documents he took with him were never unguarded.

One of the agents did not even know he was bound for Peking, said Kissinger, until a Chinese navigator boarded the plane.

There has been no word on what nationality or type aircraft was used but informants in Saigon said Kissinger flew from Pakistan to Peking on a commercial airliner under an assumed name and under a foreign passport, probably German.

'Papers' Recount Unification Try

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The unification of Vietnam through elections, now again being proposed by South Vietnam, first was proposed at the Geneva conference in 1954 that ended the French war in Indochina.

It was known that the United States subsequently opposed the elections on the theory that they might eventually mean unification of Vietnam under North Vietnam's leader Ho Chi Minh under conditions that would make democracy impossible. But, according to the recently published secret Pentagon papers on Vietnam, the United States wanted to avoid the appearance of opposing elections.

Ngo Dinh Diem, then president of South Vietnam, also opposed them. The Pentagon study said the National Security Council drafted a policy statement in May of 1955 which "held that to give no impression of blocking elections while avoiding the possibility of losing them, Diem should insist on free elections by secret ballot with strict supervision."

Communists in Korea and Germany had rejected these conditions; hopefully the Viet Minh would follow suit.

The Viet Minh were the followers of Ho Chi Minh.

The council's sentiments were forwarded to Diem, the Pentagon study said. Diem made secret elections a primary consideration in any reunification plan.

To the conclusion of the Geneva conference in July, the United States issued a statement that it would not join in signing the agreement.

Study Is Prepared On Fuel Shortages

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Interior Committee is gearing for a two-year study of the nation's rapidly expanding energy demands and its dwindling natural resources with an eye toward setting U.S. policy for the next half-century.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., committee chairman, said the panel hopes to hold hearings, many of them open, and then to propose a long-range national fuels and energy program.

William J. Van Ness, a committee staff member who will direct the investigation, said the $400,000 study is expected to cover two major periods—from now until 1980 and from 1980 to 2020.

The range of policy options for this decade is considered limited because of the long lead time needed for construction, corporate planning and research and development of new energy technology, Van Ness said.

Witnesses at hearings on the resolution that authorized the study predicted acute shortages of some fuels and energy in the face of growing demands from a booming population growth.

Fuel and energy consumption will increase more than 200 per cent by the year 2000, some witnesses said.

In a report recommending authorization of the study, the committee said: "Historically the United States has had more than adequate supplies of diverse and competitive energy resources."

"In recent years, however, there have been numerous examples of failure in supplying all of the energy which the country requires," the report added. "Blackouts resulting from the failure of electrical energy supply have increased sharply."

It said, "Some natural gas distribution companies are unable to supply all new customers, dependence upon oil imports is increasing and natural gas reserves are declining."

Administration Split Hurts Europe Cutback

WASHINGTON (AP) — Differences within the Nixon administration are holding up American plans for a program of balanced East-West troop cuts in Central Europe.

U.S. officials are saying some authorities favor a general cutback of 10 per cent at the start while others are questioning the whole concept of reductions that could upset the balance of power. As a result the plans promised to the North Atlantic Alliance — NATO — by early July will be about a month late.

The official expectation is that President Nixon's intervention will be needed to resolve the dispute which is likely to come before the National Security Council in the next few weeks.

Complex issues, with strategic and political implications, are involved, including the future of Berlin, East Germany's status, Soviet motives and security arrangements.

As informants representing the main schools of thought within the administration explained things, the lineup looks like this:

1. Some key authorities want the United States, and NATO, to stand by a 1968 offer to negotiate what the jargon calls "mutual balanced force reductions," or MBFR, with the Communist powers. The cuts would take place in Central Europe.

2. Other high-level Americans say monkeying around with force levels now could imperil the finely poised power balance built up so laboriously in post-war Europe between East and West. They say that power balance, resting on American nuclear strength, is the best way of preserving peace and any disturbance could jeopardize prospects to agree on Berlin, German affairs, limitation of strategic arms and other issues.

Complicating this philosophical tug-of-war between the diplomatic and strategic planners of the two sides is the mood of Congress.

New demands are building for reduction of the 300,000-strong U.S. garrison in Europe. Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield has complained publicly that the U.S. economy is not strong enough to continue shouldering so heavy a burden.

There is for the United States and NATO another major consideration.

Not long ago, after years of argument and education, the Americans finally got NATO to adopt the strategy of flexible response.

In unfancy terms this means U.S. allies agreed to depend, in the first place, on conventional power to repel an aggressor. If that fails they could use tactical nuclear weapons to push the attacker back. Ultimately, the full weight of Allied strategic nuclear power could be invoked.

But to be able to react so flexibly against an invader NATO had to accept the reality that more men and nonnuclear guns are needed. The NATO armies now are far below required levels.

Those administration elements favoring cuts have these ideas in mind:

—As a starting point, an across-the-board cut of about 10 per cent in the troops and armament of NATO and Communist forces in Central Europe.

—Foreign, as well as local, forces would be affected although even this has yet to be determined. The foreigners would include Americans and Russians and, so far as U.S. troops are concerned, it would mean release of about 18,000 from Europe, hardly enough to satisfy Congress.

—The thinning-out process would be coupled with buildup of a sophisticated system of verification and inspection to guard against cheating, possibly including use of spy-camera-equipped space satellites.

Administration officials hostile to any big program of troop cuts have deployed political as well as military objections:

—An MBFR negotiation between NATO and Communist Warsaw Pact nations could result in enhancing the status of East Germany, throwing away the West's strongest card in current efforts with the Russians to reach a Berlin agreement. In these efforts the West has set out, essentially, to trade a measure of recognition of East Germany for improved arrangements for West Berliners.

—To go much beyond a symbolic one-time 10-per-cent cut would leave NATO forces relatively less able than now to stand up to the larger Communist armies.

—There is a built-in asymmetry between NATO and Communist forces. All sorts of factors come into the equation, including training, equipment, morale, distance from home bases which, in the case of Americans, are an ocean's width away, availability of reserves and so on. Thus, sending 1,000 U.S. and Russian troops home from their stations in the two parts of Germany would leave the Soviets at an advantage.

When the American plan finally gets to NATO it will be the subject of consultations along with schemes submitted by other of the 15 member nations.

Then a meeting of deputy NATO foreign ministers will meet in Brussels late in September or early October to coordinate all the ideas into a single package.

College Graduate Relates Problems

recharge it if it hasn't been lying around too long.

(c) 1971 Publishers-Hall Syndicate

Dear Ann Landers: I asked my college-graduate daughter why so many college kids are hostile to their parents these days. Her answer was very interesting. This is what she said:

"Too many parents say to their children: 'Here is the money. Go to college and don't bother us for four years. Don't expect us to visit you. It's too far. Don't phone us. It's too expensive. Write to us every week but don't expect us to write to you. We're too busy. And don't dare show your face around here unless you graduate cum laude. We did.'

"What parents don't realize is that college was a breeze when they went. It's far rougher today. There is so much more to learn. The pressure is terrific. The competition is murderous. The fear of failure hangs over their heads like a black cloud. And to top it off, the mailbox is empty. No wonder they smoke dope."

What do you think of her comments, Ann Landers? — Also From The Glen Miller Era.

Dear Also: Your daughter makes the mistake of lumping all parents and all college students together as if they were cut from the same cloth. The competition in some schools is less severe than in others. Not ALL mailboxes are empty. Not ALL parents graduated with honors. And not ALL kids smoke dope. Thanks for writing.

Dear Ann Landers: This letter might save somebody a lot of pain. Please print it. Last night I borrowed a sun lamp from a friend. The instructions said two minutes for a first treatment. I couldn't believe it, so I kept the lamp on my face for ten minutes. Afterwards I looked in the mirror and didn't see any color so I turned the lamp on for another ten minutes. I looked in the mirror again and saw no sign of color so I decided it was a cheap lamp and went to sleep.

About five o'clock in the morning I woke up with this terrible pain. My face felt as if it were on fire. I got out of bed, looked in the mirror and my face was flaming red. My eyelids were so swollen I could hardly open them.

Please print the following information for people who are not accustomed to using sun lamps:

1. Read the instructions carefully and believe what they say.

2. Don't expect to notice any change in color for at least 12 hours.

3. Don't get any closer than 2-1/2 feet from the lamp.

4. Do not stay under the lamp for more than three minutes at a time. — Lobster From Little Rock.

Dear Lob: Consider yourself lucky to have come out with less than third degree burns. In this case, better red than dead.

Dear Ann Landers: On occasion you have printed letters from young girls who want to know if it's advisable to marry middle-aged or older men. When you respond I wonder if you are aware that there are 4 1/2 single girls 30 years of age (and older) for every eligible male in the same age group.

Surely, you know, Ann, that some men are worn out at 40 and others are extremely virile at 60. It's dangerous to give advice on this subject especially since the "dead-battery" sex partner knows no gender. He (or she) criss-cross like crazy. So please — Tell It Like It Is.

Dear Tell: Right you are. But I still say a dead battery can be recharged. And it's easier to

Launch Campaign To Save Parrot

WASHINGTON (AP) — Interior Department biologists in nearby Laurel, Md., have launched a campaign to save the Puerto Rican parrot, probably the world's rarest bird, from extinction.

Only 11 of the birds are known to exist, including two females in captivity.

Biologists, concerned by the species' lack of nesting success during the past two years, fear the Puerto Rican parrot may soon wing its way down the road to oblivion, following the passenger pigeon, heath hen and great auk.

Few people have even heard of the bird.

As parrots go, it is not very colorful, nor is it known for its ability to talk.

Dr. Ray C. Erickson, assistant director of the Interior Department's Pautuxent Wildlife Research Station, says only one pair has successfully hatched eggs and reared young during the past two years.

As a result, he says, plans are afoot to trap at least one of the nine wild parrots in their wooded Puerto Rican habitat in hopes of finding a mate for the females in captivity.

Biologists would like especially to capture a male but the sexes are similar in appearance.

If the first bird captured is a female, Erickson said, she will be sent to the San Diego Zoo for safekeeping.

Once a male is caught, it will be sent to the research station to be mated with one of the females.

Erickson foresees little difficulty in breeding the parrots if a male is obtained.

ICI Report Anxiously Awaited

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — A wary stock market is awaiting this week a new set of statistics that suddenly has assumed great importance to small investors, speculators and institutions.

The new factor in the market is the monthly report from the Investment Company Institute on sales and redemptions of mutual fund shares. The report itself is nothing new; the news it brings has been decidedly so of late.

In May, the ICI figures showed that for the first time in mutual fund history redemptions exceeded sales, and by the sizable sum of $121.5 million. Purchases totaled $306.7 million, cash-ins $482.2 million.

Nobody seems to be able to figure out exactly what the news means.

When the May figures were released, the market dropped 17 points, as measured by the Dow Jones Industrial average, falling below 900 points for the first time in three months.

It bounced after that. But now the question is: What will it do if the June figures show that the trend continued.

A widespread feeling exists that should the news be bad for the mutual funds for a second month in a row it will be a sharp psychological blow to the entire market.

Why is such importance being placed on mutual fund figures? Mainly because the experience of the funds could suggest the existence of a basic change in attitude on the part of many investors.

The funds have known almost nothing but growth. Their assets jumped from less than $10 billion in 1958 to $53.6 billion in 1971. The shareholder count has risen from 3.6 million in 1958 to more than 11 million now. And the number of funds has grown from 151 to more than 360 in the same period.

Growth has been the name of the mutual fund game. Is it coming to an end, at least temporarily?

Here are some things that worry observers:

—If redemptions continue high, will it force portfolio managers to sell their investments in corporations in order to raise cash? Will it cause them to dump stocks at losses in order to meet those redemption demands?

There appears to be enough cash in their reserves to pay redemptions without seriously disrupting portfolios immediately. Cash reserves in May were $2.6 billion.

While that figure seems like a lot, it may not be if redemptions continue. It was only 4.9 per cent of total assets. Cash positions last year averaged 7.7 per cent and the year before they averaged 8.

—If a pattern of high redemptions becomes chronic, will it force portfolio managers to become more conservative, thereby having a continued depressing effect on stock prices?

—Will the news cause other institutions to sell in anticipation of downward pressure on prices, especially of those stocks in which funds are known to have big percentages? At the close of 1970 there were 374 stocks in which mutual funds held 10 per cent or more of outstanding shares.

Mobile Homes Are Labeled Tornadoes 'Sitting Ducks'

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The nation's chief tornado forecaster says mobile homes are sitting ducks for wind storms unless their owners take precautions.

"Half the single-unit new housing starts in the United States are mobile homes," said Allen Pearson, who heads the National Severe Storms Forecast Center here.

"This means the problem won't go away—it will increase," said Pearson, whose National Weather Service agency is responsible for nationwide forecasting of tornadoes and other severe weather.

The problem is most severe in the Southern states, Pearson said, because of the many retired and vacationing people who use mobile homes and trailers in that area.

Almost any time a tornado or other wind storm strikes, the trailer court or park where preparations have been inadequate becomes a scene of utter devastation, Pearson said.

"Mobile homes are useful and necessary. The only problem is how to help those who own them avoid becoming casualties," he said.

"There are about 700 tornadoes a year in this country, but we estimate that less than 100 of them are real block-busters with winds of 200 or more miles an hour. Few structures can withstand this kind of twister.

"The others are smaller and short-lived with less velocity. And that makes mobile homes sitting ducks unless they are securely anchored," he said.

Pearson urged that all trailers be tied down. There are several methods of doing this and ready-made equipment to do the job is available for around $90.

Trailers or mobile homes can be anchored easily by steel cables extended over the roof at each end. The cables are scarcely noticeable.

In addition, mobile homes can be secured by means of a clamp, on the "I" beam under the unit, fastened by cable and sunk into the concrete trailer court foundation.

"Ideally, the mounting for this kind of protection should be installed by the trailer court builder. If it is done while the original concrete is being poured, the cost could be around $20."

While mobile homes have under-carriage beams, trailers do not and must be anchored by overhead cables.

"Either precaution will help," Pearson said. "But in tornadoes such as Flint, Mich., in 1953; Lubbock, Tex., in 1969 and Lakeland, Fla., and Topeka, Kan., in 1966 there virtually is no protection. The only thing you can do is get out. But where do you go?"

"I strongly urge that trailer park owners build storm shelters on the grounds of the park. These don't have to be elaborate, but they should have a concrete roof."

Another means of protection, he said, is to sink a length of storm sewer pipe in the ground near the trailer. This, Pearson said, can afford excellent protection.

He also called for adoption of zoning laws by communities requiring storm protection in trailer parks.

"If you search your memory you probably will recall that almost any time a tornado has struck in or near a trailer court, devastation has been great — there almost always is injury and often death."

Argument Results In Man's Death

LIBERTY, Mo. (AP) — George M. Goodman, 35, Kansas City, was shot to death Saturday night following an argument in Liberty.

His wife, Mrs. Elizabeth Ruane Goodman, has been charged with first-degree murder.

Joseph Y. Decuyper, chief assistant to the Clay County prosecutor, said Mrs. Goodman would be arraigned today before a magistrate.

Police gave no reason for the killing but said the investigation would continue.

Final Decision On Taxes May Come Tuesday

The Pettis County Board of Equalization is expected to make decisions Tuesday in the final cases brought before it this year by county residents seeking lower taxation, according to Mrs. Mary Jane Wilson, secretary, and a non-voting member of the board.

Mrs. Wilson, also county clerk, said a total of 54 cases were brought before the board during a series of public meetings last week. She said most of the cases were decided on at the time they were heard, but that decisions were withheld on several cases, pending discussion by the board on Monday and Tuesday.

Once decisions have been made in all of the cases, figures showing how much taxes were raised or lowered in the county will be made available, according to board officials.

Individuals wishing to know the outcome of a particular appeal may obtain information about the case from the county clerk's office.

Home Cemetery, near Warsaw. The family will receive friends from 7 to 9 p.m. Tuesday at the funeral home.

New Attorney Is Admitted To Association

Andrew C. Webb, 25, 514 1/2 South Kentucky, Sedalia's newest attorney, was formally enrolled Monday as a member of the Pettis County Bar Association before Circuit Court Judge Frank Meyers. The enrollment took place in the Circuit Court chambers here.

Attorney Robert Fritz, Sedalia city counselor and president of the county bar association, introduced Webb to the court and mentioning that the new member is associated with the law firm of Liston and Webb, located in the Commerce Building.

Webb is a native of Warrensburg and graduated from the University of Missouri in 1967 as an undergraduate. He graduated from the university's law school in June, 1970.

He was admitted to the Missouri Bar Association in the fall of 1970 and had served as a law clerk to Judge James Finch of the Missouri Supreme Court. Judge Finch was recently named chief justice of the high court.

Webb's law partner is Robert M. Liston, who was enrolled in the county bar association last May.

Merchant Licenses Delinquent

Mrs. Opal Hugelman, city collector, said Monday that 56 merchant licenses of the 800 scheduled to be sold are delinquent.

Mrs. Hugelman told The Democrat-Capital that merchant licenses are normally sold without penalty from May 1 to June 30.

Delinquent notices were sent out this year on June 28, Mrs. Hugelman said. She explained that a 10 per cent penalty is imposed on the licenses on July 1 and a 1 per cent penalty is added each month thereafter.

Mrs. Hugelman also said that 1971 city property tax bills are now being prepared and will be mailed in late October.

The 1971 tax figures will reflect a 50-cent per $100 valuation reduction. Mrs. Hugelman said the tax cut was the first since 1963.

Mrs. Hugelman released the following tax valuation figures: $1.50 in 1963; $1.85, 1964; $1.85, 1965; $2.05, 1966; $2.05, 1967; $2.15, 1968; $2.27, 1969; and $2.32, 1970.

Sedalia Man Is Arraigned On Charges

A preliminary hearing date for John Cavalier, 38, 1314 South Missouri, charged with "mistreatment of a natural child," was set in Magistrate Court Monday for July 29.

Judge Frank Armstrong, before whom Cavalier was arraigned Monday, told the defendant to secure an attorney before the hearing date.

Cavalier was arrested at his home Friday night by Pettis County sheriff's department officers after his 12-year-old daughter, Paula Jean, filed a complaint with the county juvenile officer.

The complaint alleges Cavalier "did strike, beat, bruise and ill treat" the girl. If convicted, Cavalier could be fined or sent to jail, or both. "Mistreatment of a natural child" is a graded-felony in Missouri.

Cavalier is being held in the Pettis County Jail in lieu of $2,500 bond.

Italian Fashions

Italian fashion returns to the classic during a showing of Fall-Winter collection in Rome Sunday, giving a fresh look to suits and dresses. From the Fontana Sisters comes this doubleface wool bridal gown, right, done in white, with short sleeves and long white knit wool gloves. The gown features their favorite yoke design. Designer Marucella puts out this silver harem gown, left, with silver lame boots adding a final touch. Both collections were shown in Rome Sunday.

Young People Are Shrewd Shoppers

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

"Everybody thought the youth market in home furnishings would be a bubble-gum one, but it is really quite sophisticated," observes William McCarty, 33-year-old Florida-reared London designer, who is winner of the 1971 Burlington House Young Designer's Award.

Young people account for the liberal reign young designers are being given in the home field, McCarty points out. "They are shrewd shoppers," he says. In England, they use mod pieces with handsome inherited antiques. They have a lot of respect for the good old things, and they will cherish them, but they won't use something old, if it is hideous.

"They will have a good stereo even though they drive the least expensive little car. They will have lots of books that are read, not 42-linear feet of books that merely decorate a bookshelf. They buy what appeals to them and not what other people have. They will indulge themselves if the object is worthwhile—they want quality, but they won't spend money foolishly."

The height of sophistication is simplicity, so in a way, the sophisticated market is really going grass-roots.

But even the establishment is changing and perhaps it always wanted to, but couldn't get out of the rut as young people have, McCarty says. Status symbols are being shelved in California, Florida and New York, he has noted. People have new values about their home and its relationship to the family.

And when they decorate a second time around, they adopt a new viewpoint, he explains. They decide how they are going to live in the room and they choose furnishings that fulfill the function.

Before a room is redecorated, McCarty says everything should be taken out of it. That way, he points out, it can be seen in a new light. "You may decide to recolor your furniture, and perhaps you will use a different wall background. You may wish to make the room larger with mirrors," he says.

McCarty is a slim, gangling 6-foot-5, who looks far younger than he is. He grew up in Miami and lived in Korea and Okinawa when his architect-father was stationed there in the Air Force. In 1963, he went to England to work with David Hicks, well-known designer. In addition to designing furnishings, he has decorated many homes including "a bit of the peerage," he says.

He also studied architecture at the University of Pennsylvania, and worked as a draftsman for the Philadelphia Planning Commission. That knowledge was utilized in the design of his award-winning rooms for the David Rutherstons of London. He updated one large traditional room in their residence with concave plastic columns that gave better proportion to the old English room.

Turns Disaster To Decorative Item

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY — Quite by accident I have the most attractive bathroom rug. Some bleach was spilled on my avocado green throw rug and, since it could not be dyed, I duplicated the bleach spot by making more. The bleach was put in a squeeze bottle with a very small opening, then run all over the rug in a clover design and zigzag lines. I could keep track of the design I was doing as the bleach immediately removed the color. I rinsed the bleach out well and dried the rug. My green rug has gold designs all over it and the original spots are lost in the pattern. — Mrs. V.L.

GIRLS — That is real ingenuity when a disaster can be turned into a decoration. — POLLY.

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY — I have just refinished some furniture and would like to know if anyone can tell me how to remove the shine from this new varnish to make the finish look old. — CLARA.

DEAR POLLY — My Pet Peeve is a suggestion to the manufacturers of electric beaters that hang up. I would like to see hooks attached to the side to hold the cord securely. — JOY

DEAR POLLY — Mrs. E.A. and Linda who wanted to make toys out of milk cartons can make nice square blocks. For one block, use two cartons cut off at the same height. Insert the open end of one into the open end of the other and have a perfect block without using any tape. They are a tight fit and will stay together permanently so there is no danger of losing the rocks or whatever is put inside for noise. — MRS. A. L. P.

DEAR POLLY — The ladies who wanted to make toys from milk cartons can make a doll bed by cutting out one side. By cutting open one side in each, these cartons could be used for rooms to make a doll house. The boys can use them for garages if the tops are cut off. Also they could be used to make building blocks for building forts, a playhouse and such. For this, cut off the pouring section and then stack them. Since they are fairly light in weight the cartons could be stapled together at the open ends. To make a doll chair, cut off the top, then cut down each edge of one side until it will fold across the inside of the carton, leaving a small portion to fold upward for securing with staples. Cut off the two sides, leaving just the back; cut off half of each of the two sides to make arms or just leave the sides on. — MRS. W. W. S.

Land forming and irrigation field days are planned at four points in the state during July, August and September. The first field day is planned for July 23-24 at the Jackson Naylor farm, Salisbury. Rain dates are Aug. 13-14.

A major attraction at the Naylor farm will be an explanation and demonstration of the laser beam system used in precision land grading. Also to be seen will be a demonstration of a manure gun sprinkler, examples of tile drainage, surface and sprinkler irrigation demonstrations, and crops demonstration plots.

Livestock Returns
One year ago, income levels on many livestock farms were among the best ever. A five-year study (1965-1969) of livestock prices and enterprise returns based on results shown in Illinois Farm Business Records had just been completed. More than 6,000 Illinois farmers keep these records under the supervision of trained fieldmen. Farmers enrolled in the Farm Business Farm Management Associations receive analysis reports each year. These reports are shared with the University of Illinois for educational and research purposes. These Illinois costs and returns for 1970 compare with the results of the 50 farm records summarized in the Show-Me area of Pettis, Johnson, Henry and Lafayette counties.

The summary of 1970 records shows results that most feeder-livestock farmers would like to forget. In one year, hog returns for each $1 value of feed fed dropped by a third. This change was among the greatest ever recorded. Similar comparisons for feeder cattle show a drop of 25 per cent. The 1970 summary shows the lowest returns for feed fed since 1963 and 1964 for hogs, and since 1966 and 1967 for feeder cattle. Feed accounts for 65 to 80 per cent of the total costs in producing pork and beef.

Returns from dairy and beef-cow herd enterprises improved steadily from 1965-1969; they were down slightly in 1970. Supply and demand factors have been important in explaining the improved prices from these two enterprises.

The average price received per 100 pounds of pork produced for all hogs sold from record-keeping farms (1966 through 1970) was $21.09. A recent study of selected record-keeping hog producers showed that total hog-production costs for 1970 averaged $19.03 per 100 pounds produced. These were large, specialized commercial hog farms. They averaged 385 litters per farm, and represent a high level of management using confirmed systems of hog production. Other studies have estimated the total cost of hog production at $17 to $22 per 100 pounds, depending on efficiency and the type of facilities used.

Each 10-cent shift in the price of corn also changes the cost of raising hogs by about 60 cents per hundredweight. With corn prices at $1.55, the average hog producer can expect total production costs to be between $19 and $20 per 100 pounds of pork produced.

Most hog farmers demand good pay for the kind of work involved in hog production. When profits are low, they breed fewer gilts; when profits are high, some consider expansion. Generally, the average hog producer can plan on one low-profit year out of each four. Hopefully, the past eleven months have been part of the low profit year.

Fall Webworm
Webs formed by the fall

webworm are beginning to appear on walnut, pecan and a number of shade trees. The webs are still very small, in general, enclosing two or three leaves. The larvae are about one-fourth of an inch in length now but are increasing in size rather rapidly. The webs should be easily seen very soon.

On small plants, where the webs can be easily reached from the ground, hand destruction is very practical. The webbing with the few leaves and larvae, can be taken from the plant and destroyed.

On larger trees, heavily infested with the worms, a spray containing toxaphene or Sevin at the rate of two tablespoons 60 to 65 per cent emulsifiable concentrate per gallon of water or carbaryl (Sevin) at the rate of two tablespoons 50 per cent or 80 per cent wettable powder per gallon of water should give control. The webs are tough so sufficient spray nozzle pressure should be used to drive the insecticide into these webs.

Repainting Houses
If you are thinking about repainting your house remember most urban homes are painted more often than necessary. An overly thick paint film caused by too frequent paintings or coatings that are too thick may lead to a paint failure called cross-grain cracking. Failure of this type can be identified because paint usually cracks in the direction of the wood grain and brush strokes. However, cross-grain cracks run across the grain of the wood and brush strokes. Cross-grain cracking is a serious problem, because it leads to unsightly scaling. Remedy of the situation requires the complete removal of the old paint.

Washing the paint may give you new paint appearance without repainting.

Repaint only when the old paint has weathered to the extent it no longer adequately covers or protects the wood.

If the paint has peeled and exposed wood surfaces in a few spots, remove the loose paint with a putty knife, scraper, or wood chisel. Then feather the edges of the remaining paint with sand paper, however, be careful not to hollow-out the wood while sloping the edges of the paint. Treat the bare wood with water repellent preservative containing penta. Allow the penta treated wood to weather several good drying days prior to priming. Then spotprime the penta treated wood with zinc free house paint primer. Remove dried and excess paint chalk with steel wool. Wash old, glossy and unweathered painted surfaces found in protected areas or roughen them with steel wool. Treatment of this type removes material which may interfere with paint adhesion and may cause intercoat peeling to occur at a later time.

Fall Gardens
If you are a person who likes to garden, now is the time to prepare your garden for fall planting. If you are in a position to apply water to get the plants started most vegetables should be planted July 25 to Aug. 10.

Just a few vegetables which can be grown in the fall garden are beans, beets, radishes, lettuce and corn. If you have the plants, cabbage and cauliflower do real well in the fall. Most of these are cool season crops and do not mature if the weather is like our summers. They need to be planted early so they will have time to mature in the cool fall.

You will probably experience most insects than with a spring garden. If you are interested in a fall garden we have a garden planting calendar at the Late Summer Gardens Possible

Late summer planting of vegetables extends the gardening season and makes the best use of garden space.

From now to mid-August you may plant such leafy vegetables as lettuce, spinach, Chinese cabbage, endive, collards, and kale.

Root crops such as carrots, kohlrabi, and radishes also may be planted from now until the middle of August in most areas. During the last week of July there is still time to plant early maturing sweet corn and bush beans.

Many good vegetable varieties suitable for planting at this time are available. For a list of them, as well as the best planting dates in different areas of Missouri, ask for the Vegetable Planting Calendar, Guide 6201, at your local University Extension Center.

Fall vegetables don't always have to be in the vegetable garden. If space is limited, spots in flower beds where bloom has finished can make good locations for limited plantings of one or more fall vegetables.

Some may be quite ornamental. The beet variety Detroit Dark Red has reddish foliage that lends interest to ornamental plantings until the crop is harvested.

It is too late in the season to grow good cabbage, cauliflower, broccoli, brussels sprouts, and similar crops from seed. In many areas plants can be purchased in late summer. These transplants still have ample time to develop into a good fall crop.

Prepare soil well for the fall vegetable garden to free it of weed growth and residues from previous crops. If fertilizers

Extension office which you may have by asking.

Sorghum Midge
All fields pushing heads from the boot from now on should be checked for midge regularly until approximately 90 per cent of the heads have bloomed. These tiny, orange bodied flies can be observed on the heads or shaken from the heads onto a white background of cloth or cardboard. Egg deposition occurs only just prior to and during the early hours of bloom, and it is only during this time that midge is damaging to sorghums.

Our present recommendations call for control applications to begin when one or more per head are found. Sprays should be directed onto the emerging heads with the first application made when 45 to 50 per cent of heads have emerged and a second application made three to five days later or by the time 90 per cent of heads have emerged from the boot.

were used heavily during the summer, it will not be necessary to add any more at the time of planting.

If growth has been poor and fertilizer is needed, add about two pounds of a complete general purpose garden fertilizer to each 100 square feet of garden. Work it into the soil thoroughly to a depth of about six inches.

Seeds planted during July and August must germinate during normally hot, dry weather. Frequent light waterings until germination will keep the soil surface moist and promote rapid germination.

If this is not possible, cover the soil over the rows with moist burlap, cloth, or newspaper. It is very important to remove these materials as soon as germination begins.

Always use good, fresh seeds

Hearnes Asks Disaster Aid

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Gov. Warren E. Hearnes announced today he will seek all federal disaster aid available for a southeastern Missouri area where a severe storm last Wednesday night destroyed an estimated $20 million in crops in three counties.

Heavy rains, hail and tornado winds swept the area, destroying soybeans, corn and cotton in an area which was expecting the best crop season in five to 10 years. Near Desloge, a woman and three of her children were killed in a trailer court.

Hearnes said more than 250,000 acres of crops were affected in Mississippi, Scott and Cape Girardeau counties. About 110,000 acres suffered more than 90 per cent damage and the rest more than 50 per cent.

"The destructive force of this storm is difficult to imagine," Hearnes said. "It leveled more crops than any storm within memory. Individual farm losses will have a particularly damaging impact upon the economy

Hog Cholera Level Sees Big June Drop

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Hog cholera, once a threat to the nation's pork producers, dropped in June to its lowest level since the federal government and states began a cooperative eradication program in 1962.

The Agriculture Department said only four infected herds were reported in June, compared with 89 in June 1970 and 212 in June 1969.

Moreover, the Agricultural Research Service said, there were only 418 herds infected with hog cholera during the year ended June 30, the lowest on record. In 1969-70 a total of 1,231 diseased herds were reported.

The ARS reports growing concern over recent reports of African swine fever in Cuba. The disease has nearly identical symptoms as hog cholera, officials said.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Futures trading in farm commodities regulated by the Commodity Exchange Authority reached a record high of 11.8 million transactions during the year ended June 30.

The futures trading in the commodities had a value of $115.2 billion, up 24 per cent from 1969-70, the USDA said.

Corn was the leader, accounting for one-fourth of the total volume. An all-time high of 13.7 billion bushels was represented in buying and selling, more than double the previous year.

Soybean trading was second with 13.4 billion bushels, also double from the preceding year.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Agriculture Department has reported hotdogs and other cooked sausages are being made within legal limits of fat content.

The Consumer and Marketing Service said laboratory checks on a federal limit of 30 per cent fat showed 98.2 per cent of the samples were in compliance tolerances.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Consumers can look forward next fall to a superabundance of pears.

The fruit has been given top billing on the Agriculture Department's "plentiful foods" list for September. Production of Bartlett pears this year is forecast at 539,000 tons, a 40 per cent increase from 1970.

Other products on the September list, which calls attention to food in abundant supply, include fresh purple plums, potatoes, split peas, eggs, broiler chicken and peanuts.

Reward Is Offered To Curb Vandalism

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Southwestern Bell Telephone Company has offered a $1,000 reward in the cutting of four dry air supply pipes for its cables in Kansas City.

Mas Cox, area information supervisor for the company, said automatic alarms pinpointed the air leaks Sunday. The pipes carry air to pressurized cables to keep out moisture. Repairs were made by supervisors.

Cox said the company had no way of knowing if the vandalism was connected with the six-day old strike by the Communications Workers of America.

Plane, Trainer Collide

KANSAS CITY (AP) — An Air Force jet trainer and a light civilian plane collided in the air a few miles south of Richards-Gebaur Air Force Base, with no injuries and only minor damage to both aircraft.

They landed safely yesterday at the base, on the south edge of Kansas City.

Maj. Lewis Rains, Richards-Gebaur information officer, described the collision as a glancing touch. He said the only apparent damage was a tear in the right wheel of the civilian plane and a bent rudder on the T33 trainer.

The names of the pilots were not released.

The civilian craft took off from the State Line Airport and was heading south toward Coffeyville, Kan. The jet was headed west and climbing. A spokesman for the National Transportation Safety Board said the tail section of the jet scraped the right main landing gear of the civilian aircraft. The collision was at about 3,500 feet.

An Air Force team and the safety board will continue their investigation of the circumstances.

New U.S. Negotiator May Be Named Soon

PARIS (AP) — The United States is about to name its fifth chief negotiator to the Vietnam peace talks. Almost inevitably, he will be greeted by the same essential demand made at the beginning of the three-year-old talks: the United States must withdraw completely from South Vietnam, and quickly.

Although the Communists on July 1 presented a "new" seven-point peace package, the basic and most important aspect of it is consistent with their original position. Time and again, in speaking of their plan, they have stressed: "The U.S. government must withdraw from South Vietnam all troops, military personnel, weapons and war materials."

The present deadline set by the Communists is the end of this year.

When W. Averell Harriman faced Ambassador Xuan Thuy at the first session in May 1968 the Hanoi delegate said: "The U.S. government must withdraw from South Vietnam all U.S. troops, military personnel and weapons of all kinds."

The same theme echoed through the international conference center during the tenure of Harriman's successors, Henry Cabot Lodge, Philip C. Habib and David K.E. Bruce. Bruce, suffering from a circulatory ailment, is expected to step down within the next few weeks and be replaced by William C. Porter, now ambassador to South Korea.

Last week's session wound up with what the conference's French host would call a "dialogue de sourds," dialogue of the deaf.

At the previous session, Mrs. Nguyen Thi Binh of the Viet Cong had asked Bruce four questions which she said she hoped would clarify the U.S. attitude toward her seven-point plan. Bruce partially answered her four questions last week, then asked five of his own.

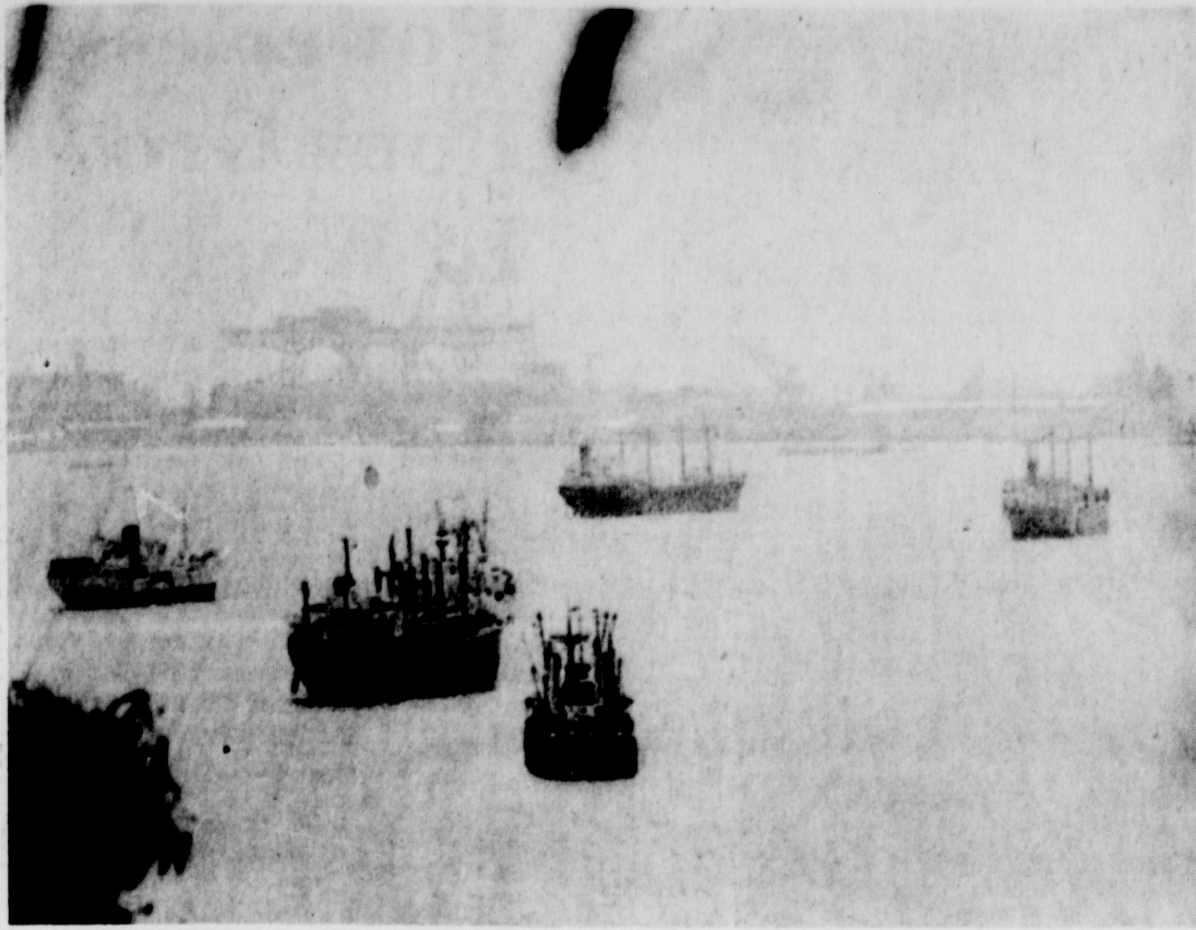

Mrs. Binh and Xuan Thuy countered by claiming that Bruce's answers were "not concrete" or "serious" and that his five questions were intended only to delay and avoid acceptance of their seven-point peace plan.

In the welter of words which flowed at the conference in spokesmen's later statements, the Communists gave observers the impression that everything standing in the way of a Vietnam settlement would be swept away if the United States pledged withdrawal in the coming months. To encourage this, they stressed again there would be "rapid" agreement on "modalities" for simultaneous release of prisoners.

Re-enlistment Package Scheduled For Testing

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Pentagon's manpower chief planned to test congressional sentiment today on offering bonuses ranging over $2,000 for re-enlistment in the National Guard or Reserve.

Guard sources said Asst. Secretary of Defense Roger T. Kelley arranged for a secret session with a House Armed Services subcommittee to discuss formal proposals that may be included in the next defense budget in January.

Pentagon officials refused to provide details. But it is known both enlistment and re-enlistment bonuses are included in an "incentive package" designed to maintain the strength of the Guard and Reserve as draft calls go down.

The proposal is said to involve enlistment bonuses—only after the draft expires—averaging more than $500 and re-enlistment bonuses averaging more than $1,700.

Amounts would depend on the length of hitch and, in the case of re-enlistment bonus, on a man's military skill as well.

The top re-enlistment bonus, would total more than $2,000 for a six-year re-enlistment in the Guard or Reserve, sources said.

Other items in the "incentive package" are believed to cover survivor benefits, medical and dental provisions, and possibly inclusion of Guardsmen and Reservists in GI mortgage insurance coverage now available to regular service veterans.

Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird has promoted the Guard and Reserve in importance as he has moved to cut the size of the regular Army, Navy, Marine Corps and Air Force.

In future crises, Laird has directed, the military establishment will call the Guard and Reserve to active duty first, rather than relying on the draft to meet emergency manpower needs as was done in the Vietnam war.

But Pentagon officials acknowledge it will be difficult to keep the ranks of the Guard and Reserve filled in peacetime without the pressure of the draft.

One National Guard authority has said "75 per cent of our guys are in because of the draft." "We're already getting word from the states of a fall-off of interest in Guard enlistments in just a few weeks since the draft law died."

The backlog of men waiting to get into the Guard dropped from 100,600 at the end of 1969 to 55,700 last March.

Genetic Question Posed By Marriage of Cousins

Dr. Lawrence Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb — My cousin and I are very much in love. We are planning to be married. I was wondering if being first cousins would damage the children we plan to have. Is there some way we can find out?

Dear Reader — The offspring of any two people tend to be like their parents. If one parent is naturally blond and one brunette, they may have children who are blond, brunette or in between. If both parents are brunette, then it is more likely that all the children will be brunette.

The process is more complicated. In effect, we all have two genes for each of our body characteristics and only one of these may determine one of our characteristics. Incidentally, each of us probably have more than 100,000 genes that determine what we are.

The only reason that marrying relatives becomes complicated from the genetic point of view is the greater likelihood that the man and wife will have a number of genes that are the same. This can obviously also occur in people who are not relatives. If it is a good characteristic, then it might even be desirable to marry relatives — although our present society would certainly frown on it.

That is essentially how purebred animals are developed. By "inbreeding," desired characteristics can be developed until one can expect the offspring of purebred animals to also have these characteristics. Thus, a purebred Siamese cat mated with another purebred Siamese produces offspring with the same characteristics as the parents.

When animals of poor quality produce offspring, they are also likely to be of poor quality.

The problem in marrying relatives is often related to certain diseases that are inherited. If there is a family history of diabetes, two diabetic parents are much more likely to have children who develop diabetes. Similarly, two epileptics are more likely to have children with epilepsy. I would think you would be wise to review your family history for any illnesses that seem to be common in either family.

First cousins should probably try to get their family doctor to refer them to a geneticist for counseling. One day, it may prove desirable for all prospective brides and grooms to have genetic counseling before marriage, whether or not they are relatives.

Once a pregnancy has occurred, fluid can be withdrawn, from the sac enclosing the fetus, and tested. This will tell whether the baby will be normal. If acceptable to one's moral concepts, an abnormal fetus could be aborted. Hopefully, the day will come — and it doesn't seem too far away — when the chemical structure of the genes can be altered. This may provide a way to prevent passing on to children inherited tendencies for some diseases.

(Newspaper Enterprise Assn.) Please send your questions and comments to Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D., in care of this paper. While Dr. Lamb cannot answer individual letters, he will answer letters of general interest in future columns.

British 'Charter' Beyond the Fringe

It is refreshing to learn that not all the kooks are in residence on this side of the Atlantic.

That Great Britain has more than its share of them is suggested by something called a "Charter of Children's Rights," drawn up by the British Advisory Center for Education with the help of the National Council for Civil Liberties. According to Tom Cullen, European correspondent for Newspaper Enterprise Association, the charter has touched off "violent" controversy.

Most of the controversy, as might be expected, centers on such items as No. 15 in the charter: "Children shall have the right at the appropriate age to such knowledge as is necessary to understand the society in which they live. This shall include knowledge of sex, contraception, religion, drugs, including alcohol and tobacco."

Yet this has the virtue of at least approaching the realm of the attainable, or the definable. Consider No. 1:

"All children have the right to protection from, and compensation for, the consequences of any inadequacies in their homes and backgrounds."

Or No. 2: "Children have the right to protection from any excessive claim made on them by their parents or others in authority."

Now just who shall decide what is an inadequacy and what is an excessive demand? And once it is decided, how shall the compensation or the remedy be applied? Who, in fact, shall be given the power to apply it?

Parents and other adults are reduced to neutral nonentities who dare not express their own opinions or beliefs lest they hopelessly contaminate their children. ("Children have the right to freedom from religious indoctrination" — No. 3.)

They dare not slap down impertinence or naughtiness or rudeness, even in their own houses. ("Children have the right to freedom of expression, both written and verbal" — No. 6.)

The charter says nothing about love or respect or tolerance and understanding between parents and children. Indeed, children have no filial or social obligation whatsoever but would, under Right No. 7, have "the freedom to make complaints about teachers, parents and others, without fear of reprisal."

Complaints to whom?

The disturbing thing about this so-called Magna Carta for children is that those who dreamed it up offer it not as a statement of principles or ideals but as something that could be put into literal, practical effect — which ultimately means being enforced by the state.

Life is already tough enough for kids without such foolish grownups as these meddling in it.

CHICAGO SUN-TIMES
"FAIR ENOUGH. THEY SEND US BOMBS — WE SEND THEM JUNKIES."

By JACK ANDERSON

WASHINGTON — A former middle-level Lockheed official has charged that the company covered up dangerous and costly flaws in the giant C5A transport plane and failed to heed his warnings to correct them.

Henry Durham, who worked for Lockheed for 20 years, said the same officials responsible for the goofs are now seeking $250 million in taxpayers' money to bail out Lockheed.

Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., and Rep. William Moorehead, D-Pa., both are investigating Durham's allegations, based on his work as a production control manager on the C5A. Durham, they feel, may be the first major fracture in Lockheed's corporate gloss on the C5A.

Durham wrote Proxmire that "Lockheed quality control stamped installation paper signifying installations of parts when in fact the parts had not been installed. . . . The fact that Air Force inspectors failed to detect such obvious discrepancies is highly suspicious."

Durham said after he began complaining about flaws, a Lockheed executive implied to him that "anyone who bucks the Lockheed company is in trouble for the rest of his life as far as obtaining suitable employment." Durham quit Lockheed in May.

As early as 1969, Durham began warning his bosses about flaws and missing parts, and on May 25, 1970, unable to get satisfaction from Lockheed in Marietta, Ga., where he worked, Durham wrote Lockheed board chairman Daniel Haughton. This is the same Dan Haughton who last week urged the taxpayers to back a $250 million loan guarantee for Lockheed.

Durham said his demands for reform led only to more coverups, even though an audit showed he was right. Thousands of missing parts were falsely reported in place, Durham wrote Haughton.

"I was concerned that some critical part might be missing and cause a possible

Merry-Go-Round

Lockheed Official Tells of Coverups

crash," says the letter, now in Proxmire's possession. "Many missing parts were found only hours before aircraft were scheduled to fly." Durham said he had documents backing up his charges.

"C5 aircraft moving to the flight line were in deplorable condition from a quality standpoint," he told Haughton. One of his bosses, he wrote, told him "to keep quiet and hide the reports" or to "try to stamp them 'confidential.'"

My associate Les Whitten spoke at length with Durham who said that the same C5A parts sometimes were ordered two and three times, that overpayments for parts ranged up to 500 per cent, and that some parts were ordered when they were already in stock. Durham said he could produce samples of tools paid for by the taxpayer, but left out to rust by Lockheed.

Footnote: We offered Lockheed a chance to comment, but at this writing have received no reply. In the past both Lockheed and the Air Force have defended the safety and performance of the C5A.

In February, after we told how Volkswagen front seats sometimes "eject" their occupants, VW's publicity mills ground out poison about us. Their dealer newsletter implied we were only trying to curry favor with the makers of Pinto, Vega and Gremlin, although no column has been tougher on Detroit than this one.

VW told worried owners that there was "no substantiation" to our charges. They sneered at safety expert Byron Bloch, who was mentioned in our column as having films showing bloody marks from a VW's occupant's head which smashed against a rear window. Bloch, said VW scornfully, "is not a recognized safety authority."

Now, makers of the little German car may want to eat some good old American crow. A jury in Hawaii has found VW liable in a crash that caused permanent injuries to the woman driver of a VW Squareback.

Evidence shows she was ejected rearward when her seat left its rails in a back-end collision. This is one of the very cases outlined in our story.

A star technical witness for the victim was Byron Bloch, the target of VW's earlier scorn. The jury found the VW and the driver of the other car culpable and awarded the victim $63,000. Ironically, the jury foreman who signed the findings is a VW owner.

Overpriced Ecology — Washington's "Fuddle Factory" never stops manufacturing goofs. The Federal Aviation Administration, as we reported, has been charging $57.50 for copies of U.S. ecology statements. At the same time, the neighboring Commerce Department was putting out a glowing handout telling the public that such statements could be had for $3.

Vietnam Victims — Sen. Ted Kennedy, D-Mass., may send staffers from his Senate Refugee Subcommittee to Vietnam to study new reports of waste and theft of American aid by Vietnam officials. Meanwhile, Americans in Saigon are studying a potential refugee problem of a different kind. Many artists, professors, educators and other South Vietnam intellectuals have thrown in their lot with America during the last ten years. American officials fear that if the Saigon government falls, this "elite" will nevertheless be imprisoned or possibly purged if Hanoi takes over, even though many are politically unbiased. Thus, contingency plans are being drafted to help them emigrate if the need arises.

Today's Thought

Powerless Poor Grow In World

By BRUCE BLOSSAT
NEA News Analyst

WASHINGTON (NEA) — In the Southwest, a huge new electric power complex is rising in the desert. The pollution-fighters, protective of the desert's clean air, have made it controversial. Something else makes it a very interesting project.

Blossat

Nicknamed the "four corners" development, from the fact that it is near the joining point of Utah, Colorado, New Mexico and Arizona, it is designed to supply major supplementary power for Los Angeles, Phoenix and some other cities. Its potential capacity is set at 20,000 megawatts (20 billion watts).

What makes this interesting is contrast. The other day a high government official concerned with world matters spotted that megawatt figure. He suddenly realized that it almost perfectly matched the power development which the World Bank had financed over a 25-year period in developing nations with a total population of 1.8 billion.

That power growth financed by the bank represents today about one-fifth of the total power resources in the developing countries.

To put it most dramatically, what those 1.8 billion people have in the way of power is just five times as great as what is being planned in our southwestern desert to take care of power overloads in Los Angeles and Phoenix.

The official who cited this example offered it to point up the incredible disparity between the affluent countries and the "have-nots." It is not news to say that many officials working to pull up the economies of the poorer lands think the gap is getting wider all the time.

One reason, known to us all, is the galloping rise in population in the world's poverty-stricken nations. There are some judgments that population planning (birth control) is not effective in these areas. By one estimate, the population in the developing lands may climb steadily for another century — to a peak of perhaps 10 billion — before any sort of stability is achieved.

An obvious critical consequence: unemployment spreading like the plague in the teeming cities of the disadvantaged countries. The gap between them and the well-off nations is on the way to becoming a huge, bottomless chasm. Says the high official:

"Human beings are not going to tolerate these extremes."

Exploding numbers spell joblessness and that means worse and worse malnutrition.

The experts today are deeply troubled over scientific findings that early human brain development is crucial and is heavily dependent on an adequate protein diet. By the age of four, 90 per cent of a human's brain growth has occurred.

Serious deprivation of protein foods in the early span stunts the brain. The results are irreversible. Thus, given the deteriorating human condition in the underdeveloped world, hundreds and hundreds of millions of today's children are being doomed right now to inadequate brain development. This is already poverty's cruellest cost.

Even if nutrition were good, the chances to extend the brain through education are so limited in many countries that another dimension is added to the widening cruelty.

The official mentioned Ethiopia, merely as an example which could be duplicated in many places. One whole region has not a single secondary school. Catastrophic is the fact that 87 per cent of that country's primary-school-age children are not in school and likely never will be. What this means, in coldest prospect, is that 50 years from now — in an era when knowledge is advancing with rocket speed — nearly nine of every 10 Ethiopians will not have even the most rudimentary education.

"Now, what's all this self-pitying nonsense from some 'idealistic' Americans that there's nothing challenging left to do? The challenges are everywhere. Question: Where are the fervent helpers?"

Scales of Justice Are Weighted For the Affluent

By CARL T. ROWAN

WASHINGTON — In a recent appearance before a Senate subcommittee, former Pennsylvania Gov. William Scranton, who headed the President's Commission on Campus Unrest, declared:

Rowan

A glance at some of the latest workings of that system illustrates why the young are incensed and why a lot of their elders ought to be, if they are not already.

In the relentless pursuit of law and order during May Day demonstrations in Washington, D.C., thousands of persons were arrested and jailed, although many were completely innocent passers-by and the evidence against most of the others were scanty at best, non-existent at worst.

About a month later, a story appeared which showed how John Mitchell's Justice Department relentlessly pursues lawbreakers of another sort. The case involved Texas real estate operator Frank W. Sharp, whom the Securities and Exchange Commission had accused of "systematically looting" at least three banks and two insurance firms he controlled, and who allegedly had generated $350,000 in quick profits for several key Texas politicians in order to gain passage of legislation he wanted. Without consulting SEC officials, the Justice Department allowed Sharp to plead guilty to a lesser charge, for which he was fined $5,000 and given three years' probation. Thus, Sharp spent less time in jail than thousands of persons whose only crime was being in the wrong place at the wrong time on May Day.

There are currently several grand juries around the United States looking into the protest movement. On the other hand, not one Federal grand jury has spent one day investigating last year's killings of four students at Kent State University.

The Kent State episode and a related one at Jackson State College in Mississippi are two of the most dramatic illustrations of why our system of justice is suspect among youth.

More than a year has gone by since six students were shot to death by law-enforcement officials on those two campuses. Yet no one has been held legally responsible for the deaths.

A Federal grand jury adjourned without voting indictments in Jackson, and it is doubtful that the Justice Department even requested or recommended that an indictment be returned. Despite months of promises that a decision is imminent, the department has yet to announce whether it even intends to convene a grand jury for Kent State.

Local grand juries exonerated law-enforcement officials in both cases. It may be that Guardsmen and the Mississippi police can justify their actions. But they should be obligated to do so in the proper judicial setting. The local juries and third-party investigations have failed to give the injured parties — and society as a whole — a thorough accounting by those responsible for the shootings.

Many questions remain unanswered. What warnings or commands were given to Kent State students just before the Guard opened fire? Is there evidence that Guardsmen were really in danger of their lives? (A Justice Department summary of the FBI report on Kent State says agents found nothing to indicate any weapons were fired except by the Guard.) Who gave the command to fire?

James F. Ahern, former New Haven, Conn., police chief and a member of the Scranton commission, has said, "It is inconceivable that the Department of Justice would refuse to convene a Federal grand jury in Ohio on the basis of the commission's conclusions that the shootings were unnecessary and unjustified, supplemented by evidence developed by the FBI and the obvious miscarriages of justice occurring on the state level."

Others who have called for a Federal grand jury include Scranton and other commission members, a score of Congressmen, and the National Council of Churches.

One of the persons most anguished by what has happened is Arthur S. Krause of Pittsburgh, whose 19-year-old daughter, Allison, was one of the four students killed at Kent State. Krause explains why he has been at the forefront of those trying to get a grand jury investigation.

"It's not that anybody can bring back my daughter. But I have another girl, a 16-year-old, and she said to me, 'Dad, you're wasting your time. The system doesn't work.' I told her, 'That's a lot of malarkey. I'll prove to you that it does and people do care.'"

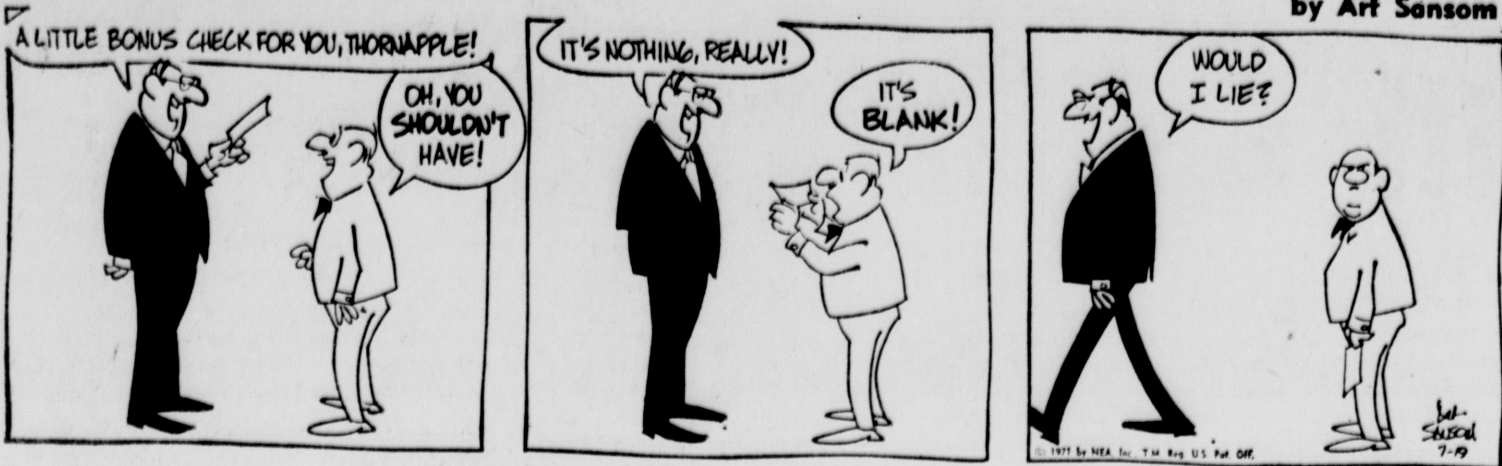

Says Krause, "I can either keep thinking and hoping the system works, or I can give up."

A couple of weeks ago a Presidential aide justified the Administration's rapid action to seek a grand jury indictment in the case of the "purloined" Pentagon papers. "How would you explain to people that you elected not to enforce the law?" the aide is quoted as asking.

You look at Kent State and Jackson State, at the political hanky-panky which is holding back reported grand jury indictments of public officials in the killing of the Chicago Black Panthers. You look at the treatment white-collar criminals get as compared to scruffier types. And you can only join in wondering, "How indeed, do you explain to people?"

Despite Martin Protest Royals Sweep Twin Bill

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Detroit Manager Billy Martin can still put on the best jaw-flexing show in the American League.

The tempestuous little skipper had a golden opportunity Sunday when Detroit dropped a rain-punctuated doubleheader to the Kansas City Royals by scores of 8-2 and 4-3, the latter a 10-inning affair.

Martin, famous for his tirades as a player, leveled his verbal outburst this time at senior umpire Larry Napp after rain delayed the first game one hour, 40 minutes in the second inning with the Royals leading 4-0.

After the tarp was removed, Napp ordered play resumed after Tiger reliever Tom Timmerman had taken about 15 minutes to warm up again. Martin became furious when Napp signaled for the batter to step into the batter's box.

Martin gave Napp the best Martin approach, virtually head to head, and cut loose.

Occasionally, the manager lingered long enough to scan the skies in search of more rain.

Martin announced finally the Tigers were playing the game under protest. Manager Bob Lemon of Kansas City also advised the umpire he was playing under protest, charging the Tigers with stalling.

What Martin told Napp wasn't recorded for posterity but this is what the Tiger manager said afterward:

"The rule says you can take all the time you need to warm up after delay of the game. He (Napp) knows that."

"I'm filing an official protest."

I'm going to push this like I never pushed a protest before. I'll take it to the commissioner if necessary, and this is one I'm going to win.

"Napp tells me to get my pitcher ready. That stupid so-and-so was only concerned about whether I was stalling. I asked Timmerman several times if he was ready. He said, 'No.'"

"Napp's having a hard enough time umpiring, and all of a sudden he's a pitching coach."

Lemon, who withdrew his protest after the game, laughed about the whole matter.

"I want to get the game going," Lemon said. "Martin doesn't want to get it going. I know how it is to be on the other side of 7-0 and have it pouring rain and the rain stops."

Asked about the rule, Lemon replied:

"The rule book goes out the window on a team's last trip into a city. They try to get the game in."

Napp had this to say:

"It's the same old Billy Martin, not caring about anybody but Billy Martin. I told him, 'Look, there's 26,000 people in the stand today, this guy's got a gate to worry about.' He tells me, 'I don't care about them. I care about me.' I tell him they're paying his salary, those people up there."

Napp said he had told Martin originally he'd hold up the game an hour.

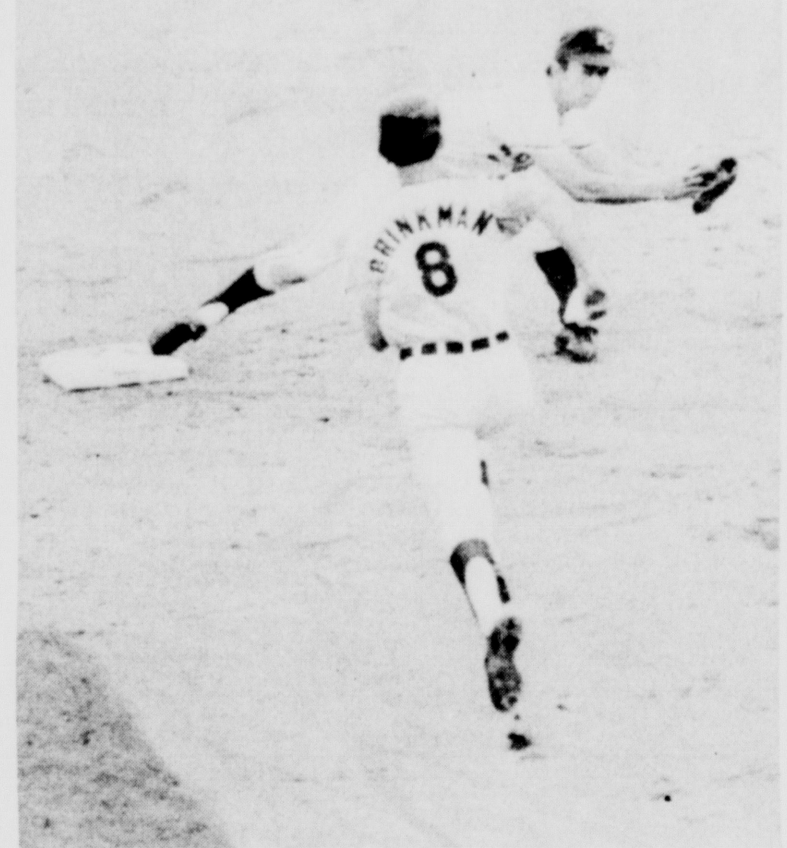

"I didn't say an hour exactly," Napp said. "I told him I'd hold it up for five hours if I wanted to. I'm the boss out there, and the decision will be made by me, not by Billy Martin."

While Martin was losing to Napp, the only really quiet soul out there was Timmerman. He just kept throwing pitches ... maybe 50 of them.

The Royals had blasted starter Bill Gilbreth, 2-1, for four runs in the first inning, three coming on Lou Piniella's first home run of the campaign.

Now after the rain, the Royals had runners on first and second and nobody out. Timmerman faced his first batter, Fred Patek, who bunted in front of the plate. Catcher Bill Freehan tried and failed to get Jerry May at third, and the bases were loaded. Martin summoned Bill Denney from the bullpen.

Hey! Warmup's Over

As Detroit's short stop Ed Brinkman runs toward second base in the first game of a doubleheader against the Royals Sunday in Kansas City, he seems to be reminding Royal's short stop Fred Patek that the game has already started. Actually, Patek was throwing to catch pitcher Paul Splitteroff's errant throw in the second inning and not warming up before the game. Brinkman was forced out. (UPI)

Training Camp Thursday

Stram Eying Super Bowl

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Coach Hank Stram of the Kansas City Chiefs said today the team's only objective the coming season is to regain the world championship as he prepared for the opening Thursday of training camp on the campus of William Jewell College at nearby Liberty, Mo.

Stram said the Chiefs won't be a carbon copy of the 1970 team which had more than its share of trouble offensively.

"We'll move the ball," Stram insisted.

The Chiefs' No. 1 problem is finding a replacement for Jerry Mays, the veteran defensive end who has retired. Prospects for filling the gap left by Mays' departure are Marvin Upshaw, Scott Lewis, Bob Stein, Bob Hews, Ed Lothamer, Wilbur Young and Bruce Bergey.

Lothamer played tackle for the Chiefs when they won the Super Bowl crown early in 1970 and will attempt a comeback after sitting out last season in retirement.

Fred Arbanas, a tight end, has retired along with Mays. Morris Stroud, pro football's tallest player at 6-foot-10 is the top candidate to replace Arbanas.

Four quarterbacks headed by aging Len Dawson will compete for that assignment. The others are Mike Livingston, John Huarte and Chuck Hixson, a rookie from Southern Methodist.

The center job is more or less up for grabs. Jack Rudny finished the 1970 season at the post. E. J. Holub, bothered by knee injuries and considerable surgery in recent years, hopes to move back in as the No. 1 center but will have stiff competition from not only Rudny but Mike Oriard.

The defensive alignment probably will be highlighted by the presence of established stars although Stram is hopeful rookies will be able to see a lot of action.

Stram, in fact, expects to make more liberal use of rookies at the training camp than ever before.

"However, the fact that we will use more of our rookies does not mean we are changing our philosophy," Stram said. "They will be expected to play with a purpose, and that purpose is to win."

"Based on the performance of several rookies during our previous workouts, I feel we have more quality depth at several positions than we have ever had. Because of this depth, our 1971 training camp should be the most competitive in recent years."

Stram got a look at most of the newcomers during spring drills, enough of a look he didn't think it necessary to set up the usual rookie camp.

The Chiefs begin work with their 1970 record of seven victories, five defeats and two ties fresh in their memories.

Namath Meets Deadline For Grid Training Camp

By EARL GERHEIM
Associated Press Sports Writer

Quarterback Joe Namath was late the last two years he checked into the New York Jets' training camp. He was on time Sunday, saying his crippled knees felt fine but complained the wrist he broke last year was not fully healed.

Two years ago he was late for camp because of an imbroglia with National Football League Commissioner Pete Rozelle over Namath's connection with the Bachelors III nightclub.

Last year he was tardy due to "personal problems."

Sporting his usual mod hairstyle, Broadway Joe said he would have to fashion a proper mental attitude about the ailing wrist that sidelined him for the last 10 games of 1970.

Namath said he was fearful the occasional pain may hamper his throwing motion, but added: "When you're out there throwing in a game, there are so many things on your mind you don't think of it."

Namath suited up for a brisk 20-minute workout and rifled several passes without difficulty after he and 22 other veterans arrived at the Jets' training site at Hofstra University in Hempstead, N.Y.

Meanwhile, Cleveland Browns

Joe's on time

coach Nick Skorich was concerned about developing a winning attitude among his returning veterans. He told the players he was dissatisfied with last year's 7-7 record and said he wanted back on the victory side of the ledger.

Los Angeles Rams coach Tommy Prothro gave his charges Sunday morning off but announced the team will return to two-a-day workouts Monday. Jerry Gordon, former Auburn offensive tackle, became the fifth Ram to leave camp voluntarily. The Pittsburgh Steelers cut Arizona State quarterback Joe Spagnola along with rookies, tight end Bill Wright and running back Ira Glass.

O'Connor's Takes Loss in Softball

CLARKSBURG — Mike O'Connor's softball team, who had demolished just about all their competition to date, ran into a snag Sunday night in the form of Stover Carpet of Jefferson City, who downed the locals 7-0 in the double elimination tournament here.

John Fiene took the loss for O'Connor's. Bones Harvey turned in a fine relief stint in curbing the winners on one run over the final four and two-thirds innings. Mike Howell was the winning pitcher.

O'Connor's travels back to Clarksburg tonight to meet Mutual of Omaha, Jefferson City, at 7 p.m.

The non-league loss left the local team with an overall mark of 43-5 and 29-1 in league play.

Present For Torre

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Joe Torre gave himself a 31st birthday present Sunday — a three-run double that gave the St. Louis Cardinals the margin needed to beat the New York Mets for the first time in seven meetings this year.

It all started happening in the seventh inning, when the Cardinals were down 4-2 on the strength of Donn Clendenon's seventh home run in the second inning and run-producing hits by Duffy Dyer, Dave Marshall and Bob Aspromonte against Redbird starter Al Santorini.

In the seventh, Jose Cruz and Dal Maxvill walked with two out, then Beauchamp, batting for winner Chuck Taylor (2-0), doubled them in.

With the score tied, Lou Brock was passed and Matty Alou beat out a grounder to load the bases. Simmons beat out a high bouncer as Beauchamp scored, then stepped Torre and cleaned the bags with a double to right center.

Taylor, who worked his longest relief stint of the year at four and one-third innings, aided his own cause with a run-producing triple that got the Redbirds on the scoreboard. He then scored himself on a wild pitch to make it 4-2.

Rookie lefthander John Matlock (0-1) making his second major league start, breezed through two innings but gave up two runs on three hits in the third inning.

He left the mound after Beauchamp's tying double and Danny Frisella took over.

Steve Carlton, (13-5) will start against the mets tonight. Ray Sadecki (3-2) will start for New York.

Coaches' Clinic At Warrensburg

(Democrat-Capital Service)

WARRENSBURG — The Fifth Annual Central Missouri State College High School Football Coaches Clinic will be held July 30 and 31 on the college's campus, according to Howard Mahanes, CMSC Head Football Coach.

Headed by Mahanes, who guided the Mules to a MIAA Championship last season and a berth in the Pecan Bowl in Arlington, Tex., the clinic annually brings together the high school coaches in the central Missouri area to exchange ideas and learn new coaching techniques. In addition to Mahanes and his staff the clinic features several of the top coaches in the Midwest as guest speakers.

Feature speakers for the clinic this summer include Vic Bonnuchi, Excelsior Springs High School, whose teams have posted 71 wins against only 13 losses during his ten year career; Jerry Hedges, Ft. Osage, whose team captured the tough Suburban Seven Title last fall; and Jerry Bailey, Notowa, Okla., High School, who was named Oklahoma High School Coach of the Year last fall after his team captured the Class AA title.

Also highlighting the clinic will be the annual coaches golf tournament, conducted at 1 p.m. Friday, July 30, at the Warrensburg Country Club. Those wishing to register for the clinic may contact Howard Mahanes in the CMSC Athletic Department or register at 8 a.m. before each session.

sistent contact that gets the ball up to the hole.

I like to put my hands forward as I address the ball on pitch shots. That "hoods" the clubface some—takes some of the effective loft off it. I often do this with an 8-iron.

By "hooding" the clubface, I always get overspin on the ball. I'm consistent. The ball will scoot and run, but I know that, and I allow for it.

Then the key is simply to stay right over the ball, and hit right down into it. Don't try to scoop it into the air.

Robinson Eyes Playoffs With Powerful Oakland

By KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer
Brooks Robinson expects the Oakland A's to be one of the teams in the American League playoffs, but he's not so sure about his injury-walloped Baltimore Orioles.

"If we make it," says Baltimore's slick third baseman, "then we'll be playing Oakland all right. They've got too many good players not to win."

Robinson is doing his best, though, to help the Birds nail down an East Division berth against the West Division champion this fall.

His fielding has been impeccable, as usual, and Sunday he made up for the Orioles' loss of power hitters Frank Robinson and Boog Powell by blasting a grand slam home run in a 7-3 triumph over the A's.

His Destiny

Crampton on Top

CHICAGO (AP) — Bruce Crampton, 35-year-old Australian, is a philosophical golfer who believes if you are destined to win a tournament, you will do it, no matter what.

He was in four traps, missed seven fairways with his tee shots and was among trees about as much as a lumberjack Sunday—but he won the Western Open Golf Championship and its $30,000 award. A closing 34-37—71 for a five-under-par 279 did it.

The slightly-built but sturdy Aussie, who forsook his parents' wishes that he become a tennis player like himself, now has won 10 tournaments, since coming to these shores in 1957 and has passed a half million dollars in winnings.

The Western, however, was his first victory since taking the $50,000 jackpot in the Westchester Open a year ago. His best finish previously this season was third in the recent Milwaukee Open.

In the next month and a half, Crampton will have shots at a pair of $50,000 winning plums.

He defends his title in the $250,000 Westchester—richest tourney in the world—this week. And by winning the Western, he qualified for the World Series of Golf in Akron in September, playing for the

Bruce Crampton ... destiny

$50,000 first prize against Lee Trevino, the U.S. Canadian and British Open king; Jack Nicklaus, the PGA champ, and Charles Coody, the Masters winner.

"I'm all excited about this victory and will get a lot of calls from friends here and abroad," said Crampton. "When this phase passes, then I'll be ready mentally to take on Westchester."

"As for winning it again—I just don't know. But Super Mex kept winning and maybe Super Kangaroo can, too."

Crampton referred to Trevino and his fantastic victory streak in the last month. Trevino cooled off at Olympia Fields, however, closing with a 70 for 291 and a share of 32nd place.

He won $870 and gave his caddy $200.

Bobby Nichols skidded to a 38 on the front side and came back strongly before bogeying the 17th to close with 35 for a 73 and total 281 for second place. It was worth $17,100.

Young Jerry Heard and Tommy Aaron, each with 71, shared third place with 282 and collected $8,850. Dick Lotz, who made an eagle on the second hole and then flew apart, wound up with 75 for 283 and fifth place worth $6,150.

ally overshadowed by his fielding exploits.

The New York Yankees swept a doubleheader from the Chicago White Sox, 3-2 and 6-1; the Washington Senators trimmed the Minnesota Twins 3-2; the Milwaukee Brewers nipped the Boston Red Sox 5-4; the Kansas City Royals took a pair from the Detroit Tigers, 8-2 and 4-3 in 10 innings and California turned back Cleveland 3-1.

Robinson's blast, his 11th homer of the year, came off Oakland's John "Blue Moon" Odom and highlighted a seven-run Baltimore fifth that put the game away.

Bobby Murcer delivered a tying, two-run single and Ron Swoboda, the game-winning single as New York rallied for three runs to win the opener over Chicago.

Mike Kekich spun a one-hitter—Mike Andrews' fifth-inning home run—to pace the Yankees' second-game success. The one-hitter was the second of Kekich's career, the other coming with Los Angeles in the National League.

Roy White slammed a two-run homer and double and stole home to lead the Yankees' offense in the nightcap.

Rookie Toby Harrah raced home for third on a rundown play in the bottom of the ninth inning to lift Washington over Minnesota. The Senators trailed 2-1 going into the ninth before rallying for the two deciding runs.

With Dave Nelson and Harrah on first and second with successive singles, Elliott Maddox smashed a third consecutive single to left, scoring Nelson and tying the game 2-2.

Dr. Pepper Team Takes Twin Bill

The Dr. Pepper softball team took both ends of a doubleheader from Warsaw Merchants Sunday night at Housel Park, 9-5 and 7-2.

Chuck St. Cyr and Dale Fangohr pitched the locals to victory in the first game, with Meyers taking the loss. Ken Hamby and Wendell Brandes homered in each game.

In the second contest Jim Werneke took the win for Dr. Pepper while Stapp was the loser for Warsaw. In addition to Hamby and Brandes, Wayne Brandes and Dave Meisner each homered in the second contest.

Dr. Pepper plays Hamm's Beer of Houstonia in a doubleheader tonight.

Rain Dampens Tennis Tourney

Rain dampened an enthusiastic reception for Sedalia's first Annual Tennis Tournament held Saturday and Sunday at Liberty Park.

Final matches were completed in only three of seven divisions when the downpour disrupted the 128-entry affair.

Matches not completed were rescheduled for tonight, weather permitting. Trophies to the winners in all seven divisions will be presented at 7:30 p.m. at courtside by first runner-up in the Miss Sedalia Pageant, Miss Pam Koetting, in the absence of Miss Sedalia, Cindy Heeren, who is competing in the Miss Missouri Pageant in Mexico.

Three Outs Shy

Walker Misses No-Hitter

By BERT ROSENTHAL
Associated Press Sports Writer
Luke Walker walked into the Pirates' locker room after having come within three outs of hurling the first no-hitter in Pittsburgh in 64 years.

Steve Blass, another member of the Pirates' underrated pitching staff and the club's top comedian, shouted across the crowded room, "Walker, I know the solution for you—start you every three weeks."

It was meant to be funny, but it wasn't to Walker. The 27-year-old left-hander, the Pirates' big winner last season with 15 victories, hadn't started a game since June 29, until he faced the Los Angeles Dodgers Sunday.

Walker enhanced his chances of regaining a regular starting berth—and nearly pitched himself into the record books—handcuffing the Dodgers on one hit—Joe Ferguson's leadoff homer in the ninth—as the Pirates completed a doubleheader sweep with a 7-1 victory, extending their winning streak to 11 games—longest in the majors this season.

The Pirates, who increased their National League East lead to 11½ games over second-place Chicago, won the opener 3-2.

Elsewhere in the National League, Chicago trimmed Montreal 8-4; St. Louis dropped the staggering New York Mets 8-5; San Francisco split with Atlanta, winning the opener 5-4 in 12 innings and losing the nightcap 4-2; Philadelphia and Houston also divided, the Phillies taking the first game 1-0 and the Astros winning the second game 10-7, and Cincinnati blanked San Diego 3-0 in their 5½-inning rain-shortened opener of a scheduled twinbill.

Walker had no regrets about losing his no-hitter and Ferguson had no remorse about breaking it up.

"Sure, I've dreamed of a no-hitter," said Walker. "I'm sure every pitcher does. But there's nothing to feel bad about. If his homer had won it, then it would have hurt."

The Pirate southpaw, bidding to become the first hurler to throw a no-hitter in Pittsburgh since the Pirates' Nicholas Maddox did it against the Brooklyn Dodgers on Sept. 20, 1907 in a 2-1 victory at old Exposition Park, had allowed only three baserunners until Ferguson slammed the first pitch in the ninth over the left field wall for his first major league homer.

The Pirates moved into Forbes Field on June 30, 1909, and a no-hit game never was pitched there in 61 years. They moved into Three Rivers Stadium on July 16, 1970.

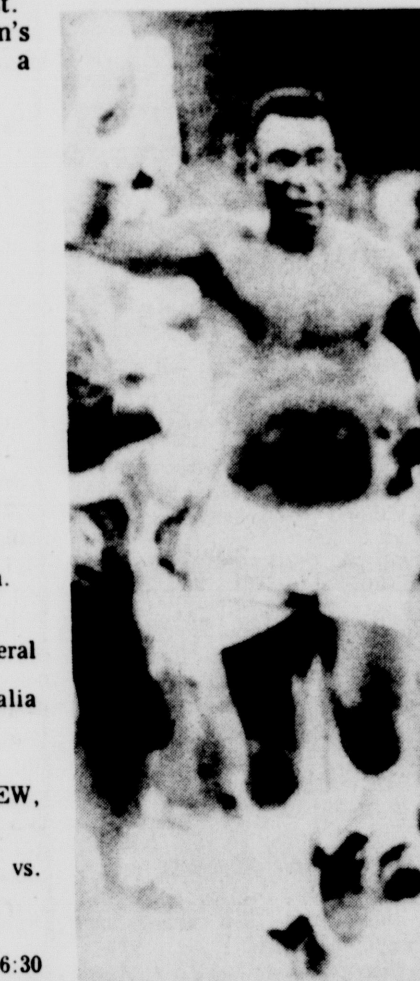

Walker's victory, his first since June 23 and his first complete game since April 8, raised his record to 4-7.

In the opener, the Pirates broke a 2-2 tie in the ninth when Gene Alley led off with a triple, held third while Renaldo Stennett beat out an infield hit and Bill Mazeroski was intentionally walked and raced home with the winning run on Gene Clines' bounce to second base.

World's Greatest

Pele Leaves Fans Behind

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP) — With a tear-stained face and the tribute of 238,000 fans ringing in his ears, the man considered the world's greatest soccer player twirled his famed No. 10 jersey above his head Sunday and retired from Brazil's national team.

Pele ... calling it quits

Pele, the Black Pearl who posted 1,086 career goals, was choked with emotion as he told newsmen he decided to retire after his 110th game to give his nation a chance to develop younger players.

"It is all too overwhelming," he said, half sobbing, about his farewell. "I had tried to imagine what this would be like, but it surpassed anything I could think of."

But he has not left soccer forever—he still plans to play with Santos, his professional team.

Pele played the first half of Brazil's match against Yugoslavia and then sat out the last half as his former teammates erased a 1-0 deficit for a 2-2 tie.

Throughout the first half, Pele's teammates tried to maneuver him into scoring position but the tenacity of the Yugoslav defense blocked his efforts to notch one final goal.

Mobbed with admirers at the intermission, Pele jogged around Maracana Stadium to the strains of "Para Frente Brazil" (Forward Brazil) and "Obrigado Pele" (Thank You Pele). The two songs have become symbolic of Brazilian soccer superiority since Brazil garnered the World Cup last year.

Hundreds of spectators wept openly and shouted for Pele not to retire as he trotted around the field.

Soccer fans throughout the world watched on television Sunday as Pele bade farewell. In Seville, Spain, officials canceled the bullfights so fans could witness Pele's performance on television.

In London, the Daily Mirror called Pele "unique, irreplaceable. He is one legend that will never diminish."

Ceramics is more than a hobby shop item to engineers at Honeywell in Minneapolis. Secretary Diane Brogger holds a water-thin chip of transparent ceramic material that could replace the video tube in the color television set in the background or hold a two-million bit computer memory. The crystal clear chip of ceramic can be refined to the diameter of a nickel and a thickness of less than five-thousands of an inch. (UPI)

Governors Opening Annual Conference

SOUTH SIOUX CITY, Neb. (AP) — Midwestern governors, with common concerns over fiscal, social and agricultural problems, opened a three-day annual conference here Monday.

Urban opportunities and agricultural issues were slated for attention at a first business session.

Democratic chief executives outnumber Republicans 9-6 in the 15 states involved—Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, Nebraska, North Dakota, Ohio, Oklahoma, South Dakota, West Virginia and Wisconsin.

At a news conference Sunday night, early arrivals found themselves in disagreement—without regard to party lines—on the potential impact of the reduction of the voting age to 18.

Missouri's Democratic Governor

Warren E. Hearnes said he doubted the new young voters will greatly affect any particular race.

"I think you'll see the same apathy among 18-year-olds as among those over 21," he said.

South Dakota's Gov. Richard S. Kneip, also a Democrat, forecast "great impact, not only in the Midwest but in the entire country."

Other governors participating—Robert D. Ray of Iowa, Robert B. Docking of Kansas and J. James Exon of Nebraska—sided with Hearnes.

Exon proposed a concerted registration effort for high school seniors during their graduation week.

Revenue-sharing was discussed, although Docking, conference chairman, said he doubted a formal resolution on the subject will come out of the conference.

Vaccinate Horses Against Epidemic

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — All horses in Texas, Oklahoma, Arkansas, New Mexico and Louisiana are to be vaccinated against a mosquito-carried disease that kills about half the horses it strikes.

A quarantine that was imposed on horses in Texas after the disease spread into the United States from Mexico and South America has been extended to the other four states, and the federal government has made $5 million and additional manpower available.

A regional emergency headquarters opens today in Houston to coordinate efforts in five states to fight the disease-Venezuelan equine encephalomyelitis, or VEE.

Plans for the five-state program were developed Sunday at a meeting in Dallas of federal officials, state veterinarians and other animal health leaders from the states.

The $5 million in federal funds and additional manpower became available Friday after Secretary of Agriculture Clifford Hardin declared the VEE outbreak a national emergency.

Dr. R. E. Omohundro, assistant director of the animal health division of the U.S. Department of Agriculture, will head the regional emergency headquarters. He said it will coordinate immunization of horses, mosquito abatement, disease diagnosis and the maintenance of quarantine.

He said enough doses of a new vaccine found effective in preventing the disease will be available by the end of the week for the approximately 1.5 million horses in the five states.

Authorities say fewer than 50 per cent of the horses who contract the disease survive. An afflicted horse typically runs a high temperature and begins to walk dazedly in an ever-diminishing circle until he collapses and dies after experiencing a violent spasm.

The disease produces flu-like symptoms in humans, and officials say 43 persons have been treated in the two South Texas counties where the outbreak has been concentrated. The disease is not considered serious for humans, and no vaccine is available.

Preventive measures also include extensive spraying of an insecticide to kill the mosquitoes that spread the disease. Omohundro said Air Force and commercial planes would spray 5-to-30-mile strips from Brownsville, Tex., to Cameron Parish, La., today.

Granite Lodge No. 272, A.F. & A.M., will meet in special communication Monday, July 19, at 7:00 p.m., Masonic Temple, Broadway and Missouri. Work in the first and second degrees. Visiting brethren always welcome.

Robert W. Taylor, W.M., Lloyd C. Kennon, Sec'y.

Pettis County Veterans of Foreign Wars, Post No. 2591, in regular meetings the 1st and 3rd Wednesday nights at 8 p.m. 121 South Ohio. Clifford Wells, Comm. Rodney C. Lynd, Adj.

Envoys Curious Over China Trip

WASHINGTON (AP) — For eight envoys queued up to see Secretary of State William P. Rogers today for clues to how President Nixon's Peking trip may affect their countries.

Most concerned were Asian ambassadors from nations whose defenses are linked to the United States.

"Just what is the meaning of 'old friend'?" asked one Asian diplomat privately as he waited his turn on Rogers' overflowing appointments schedule.

Nixon used the term in his brief trip announcement Thursday, trying especially to reassure America's allies on the Communist mainland rim from South Korea to Thailand.

"Our action in seeking a new relationship with the People's Republic of China will not be at the expense of our old friends," Nixon said.

But the Asian allies want to know more as they assess how heavily they want to lean in the future on Washington commitments stemming from cold-war days when Peking was rated here as a militant threat to its non-Communist neighbors.

Nixon's journey is widely seen in Asian eyes as U.S. recognition of Red China as a big power, even though establishment of formal Washington-Peking diplomatic relations is still some time off.

Nationalist China's ambassador, James C.H. Shen, already has lodged a stiff protest with the State Department. He was among the half dozen or more Asians on Rogers' visitors list.

Expecting the heavy diplomatic traffic, Rogers canceled a speaking date in London tonight to give the briefings personally. He returned to Washington late Sunday with Nixon from San Clemente, Calif.

Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird, returning from a 17-day visit to Japan and South Korea, was asked about past statements that Communist China might become a nuclear blackmail threat to its neighbors.

"We must maintain our realistic deterrent as we go forward with President Nixon's quest for peace," Laird told newsmen.

Rogers' questioners also hoped for some guidance on another major decision the State Department is slated to disclose shortly: what the United States will do about Peking's proposed entry into the United Nations.

Nixon's announcement he will visit Peking before next May has boosted momentum at the United Nations for admitting Red China this fall, even if it means kicking out Nationalist China.

The Nixon administration opposes seating Peking at the expense of Taiwan. But a number of U.S. officials now doubt they can stem the tide.

Oil Firm Relative Dies in Jail Cell

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Donald R. Hudson, 32, a member of a prominent Kansas City oil family, died Sunday after he was found ill in a cell at the city jail.

Kansas City police arrested Hudson Saturday night on a fugitive warrant charging that he failed to appear at a hearing on a drug charge.

He was the son of M. R. Hudson, who formed the Fisco Oil Co. after his departure from the Hudson Oil Co. Mrs. Mary Hudson, founder and president of Hudson Oil, was Donald Hudson's aunt.

Kansas City police said when they took Hudson's fingerprints he appeared to be intoxicated, but the officers said they could smell no liquor.

An autopsy is to be performed.

The fugitive warrant was issued by Johnson County authorities at Olathe, Kan. Hudson lived in Westwood, a Kansas suburb of Kansas City.

Body of Youth Found in Lake

TIPTONVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Searchers recovered the body of a 16-year-old Kennett, Mo., youth Saturday about a half hour after the youth drowned in Reelfoot Lake near here.

Lake County sheriff's officers said Jeff Spooner apparently drowned after diving from a pier and having the wind knocked out of him.
